Who we are:

Crenshaw Crag is LA's brand new climbing gym focused on making climbing accessible to all types of people.

Why we do what we do:

Our founders have been climbing for over 10 years now but both weren't introduced to the sport until their early 20's. Coming from LA, they weren't exposed to climbing until leaving the city, so now they're trying to bring the best climbing experience into the heart of the city.

Our goals:

We strive to spread the joy of climbing to a community that doesn't have easy access to it. We hope our inclusive gym will keep you coming back!

Our story:

Childhood friends George Atlanta and Austin Texas grew up only 3 miles away from the location of Crenshaw Crag. Growing up they loved to be outside but stuck to common sports like basketball and soccer. It wasn't until they both went to the same college where they got exposed to the world of climbing. Not only did they fall in love with the sport, but also the community and way of life. They came to find out that the climbing community is one of the most inclusive and uplifting communities out there. So after working desk jobs for a couple of decades, both of them decided that it was finally time to build their dream, a climbing gym!
